IMPORTANCE OF PERSONALITY DEVELOPMENT OF A CHILD

सफलता में बच्चे के व्यक्तित्व विकास का महत्त्व

Children are the future of the nation, society and family. Foundation of this future is laid in present, and the responsibility of this lies wholly with the mother-father, teacher, education and the environment. Development of personality is not possible without understanding the elements that work in the personality development of the children. Development of children's abilities through family environment, opportunities to fine talent, encouraging behaviour habits and company are the factors, which can work together to give children's development a new direction. But the condition is that the parents (mother-father) must be aware of all these elements or the future of the children will be jeopardized.

Mother and father play a potter's role in the personality development of the children. Initially, mother-fathers are fully responsible. Such as a potter strokes a raw pitcher and makes it perfect, but at the same time lends a support from inside with his second hand. Somewhat similar thinking is required from the parents, teachers, and social reformers. Unfortunately, it is totally missing in today's environment. In fact, only the good consecrations in a child make him a proud citizen of tomorrow. Smaller things in the practical life form the basis of their success and make their personality impressive.

Life's success lies in becoming a good human being and developing the personality acquiring good virtues and high morals and not in gaining a high post or authority. You don't want your children to be poor. But will you like them to become a wealthy beast? BEWARE! If you want that; YOU will be the first victim. YOU will have to suffer the maximum torture of their brutality first; the society will come next.

Personality Development

Element No.1 - MORALITY

☐ When boy Albert woke up in the morning, he heard the tweeting of a baby parrot coming from a tree in the garden. Albert's joy was boundless. He caught the baby parrot and put him in a cage. Albert was swinging with joy to possess a parrot, but the parrot fluttered badly in a hope of getting freed. It did not eat any thing for two days. But at last it compromised with the circumstances. Parrot, christened 'Tony' took the cage as its destiny. Boy Albert befriended Tony and taught it to talk. Like a helpless prisoner, Tony used to talk a lot with Albert.

One day, Albert was busy reading in the library of his school. When the time was over watchman erringly closed him in the library. Albert passed the night anxiously in the library. His parents searched him for the whole night. Next morning, when the school was reopened, watchman realized his mistake. Albert too had realized the horror of one night imprisonment. This little incident opened his eyes.

Albert ran at once towards home. Taking Tony out of the cage, he said, "Friend, now I have realized the horror of imprisonment. You are free from this moment. Forgive me."

This lesson of morality was learned from a small mistake, but it worked lifelong for Mr. Albert. Despite being a little child, Albert listened to his inner voice and saw the values again in his little life and improved upon them for whole of his life.

Element of Personality Development No. 2

Small little things make a very big difference

If a man brings about a change, be it a small or big, it will not have any impact or make a difference. But if many people bring about many little changes, the difference will be great (very big difference). At times we ignore significant things and consider insignificant things.

What are we giving to the world? What is our contribution? This is the right time when everyone, you and we should ponder over these questions.
